Nutter Center costs back in line with budget

By PHILIP E.L. GREENE

News Editor

Plans for the E.J. Nutter Center, which were reported last quarter to have had an estimated cost of $29 million, have been revised to bring the project back in line with its budget of $22.1 million.

According to Robert L. Fenning, director of planning and institutional research, the estimated costs had risen due mostly to a previously unseen increase in overall square footage. Since costs are evaluated by the square foot, this increase pushed the estimates higher.

"We are currently back within the project budget," Fenning said.

The original budget plans called for the structure to be about 260,000 sq. ft., but when the project went from the drawing stage to what is called the fitting stage, where different aspects of the final structure are included, the dimensions grew to about 293,000.

When this happened, Fenning said, reviews were made of the plans and solutions were considered until the building was pared down to fit within the budget.

For instance, one of the main storage areas, where such things as the basketball floor, commencement services floor, and other large items will be kept, was examined and found to be oversized.

"We were able to take out of that almost 7,000 square feet," Fenning said.

Other areas which were reduced for better cost effectiveness were locker rooms, offices and auxiliary gyms, according to Fenning, and were "prime reductions in cost."

Also, some site costs were slimmed down by reducing the size of the plaza area outside the building.

Fenning said also that further reductions might be had if the university can persuade contractors for the 441A extension to perform some of the grading work which will be necessary, and use the dirt graded off for the extension project.

Fenning concluded by saying the project has now progressed beyond the schematic design stage into design development.

He emphasized that, under the current plans, neither the Biological Preserve nor Achilles Hill will be destroyed by the Nutter project.

WORLD BRIEFS

A change of heart by a freshman senator has set up a new showdown on a popular $88 billion highway bill that was vetoed by President Reagan. The Senate earlier in the day came up two votes short of overriding Reagan's veto of the bill. But North Carolina Democrat Terry Sanford—who voted "present" to sustain Reagan's veto—said he'd like the chance to change his mind. Sanford's statement came as the Senate debated a motion to reconsider the first vote.

The State Department and Pentagon probe into alleged security violations by Marines at the U.S. embassy in Moscow is expanding. Twenty-eight Marine guards at the facility are returning to the United States for questioning. So far, three Marines are being held for security violations at the Moscow complex. And, the commander of Marine embassy guards said more may be implicated.

OHIO BRIEFS

(MADISON, WI)—An out-of-court settlement yesterday between Wendy's and a former Madison, Wisconsin, store manager charging sex discrimination could affect some 2,000 women nationwide. The settlement totals about $2 million. It also includes $1.3 million in back pay for women employed in manager-level at Wendy's for about two years.

Johnson resigns as ICC chairer

By KRISTEN HUFF
Editor

Kerry Johnson has officially resigned his post as Inter-Club Council chairer for "personal reasons." Johnson's resignation was announced at yesterday's ICC meeting.

Rather than run an election to temporarily replace the chairer position, the other ICC officers will run the organization's functions temporarily.

The election process for next year's officers begins at next week's meeting, and once the new chairer is elected he or she will immediately fill the vacant position and assume the chairer's stipend.

Vice chairer nominations are being accepted at the April 8 and 15 meetings. Applications for the vice chairer and chairer positions are due April 17. Chairer selection interviews will be conducted the week of April 20 and vice chairers will be determined at the April 22 ICC meeting.

The general chairer position is selected by a board made up of outgoing ICC officers and two members at large with Advisors Kathy Morris and Gerry Petrak serving as ex officio members, Morris said.

Vice chairers are elected by a vote of all ICC reps.

Job descriptions will be available at the next meeting.

Local health agencies sponsor cancer screenings

By PHILIP E.L. GREENE
News Editor

The American Cancer Society, Greene Memorial Hospital, and the Greene County Health Department will sponsor seven cancer screening clinics in different communities this month.

Open to men and women of all ages, the clinics will conduct Papp and breast cancer tests for women and prostate and testicular tests for men. They will also offer blood stool tests for individuals over forty.

Eileen Berner, co-chairer of the public education committee for the American Cancer Society (ACS), said in an interview yesterday, "What we're trying to do here is early detection."

In speaking about breast cancer, she said that about 86% of breast cancer is curable with early detection, and recommended that women under the age of thirty take the precaution of monthly breast self-examinations and yearly checkups with a physician.

Signs for concern might be a redness of an area of the breast, a puckering or dimpling of the skin, excretion from the nipple of non-lactating (milk-producing) women, or a lump found in the breast.

"Not every lump they feel is cancer, but it should be checked out," said Berner.

She also said that many women have begun to complain of sore breasts, which she contributed to high intake of caffeine in coffee, soft drinks, and some chocolate products, but she declined to say if this might be a possible cause of breast cancer.

"We don't know the cause of cancer. If we did, we would know the cure," she said.

Other guidelines recommended by Berner are women between the ages of 35 and 39 years should have a baseline mammogram, which will be used at all future dates as a comparison on following mammograms.

Women 40-49 years old should then have a mammogram every other year and women over fifty should have one each year.

Women under the age of thirty, she said, should practice self-examinations at home, and, if anything suspicious is felt, their doctor may then order a mammogram for them.

Other risk factors for breast cancer include a family history of cancer, any woman over thirty who has not had a child or who has had her first child after the age of thirty, and any woman over the age of fifty.

The screening clinics are as follows:

April 4—Jamestown, at Dr. Sarah Patil's office at 17 E. Washington St. 10 a.m.-1 p.m.

April 5—Xenia, at Greene Memorial Hospital, 10 a.m.-2 p.m.

April 11—Yellow Springs, at the Y.S. Family Health Center, on U.S. Rte. 68, 10 a.m.-2 p.m.

April 22—Beavercreek, at Dr. Brewster's office in the Beaver Valley Shopping Center, 5-7 p.m.

April 25—Bellbrook, at Dr. Goetz's office at 46 E. Franklin St., 10 a.m.-noon.

April 25—Cedarville, at the Patterson Clinic, 251 N. Main St., 10 a.m.-1 p.m.

April 28—Fairborn, 6-8 p.m.

All clinics are free to the public.

Berner said anyone wishing for additional information should call the ACS in Beavercreek at 426-2284.

Michael Coakley, director of Housing; Joanne Risacher, Assistant Vice President of Student Life; Steve Lyons, International Student Advisor; and Stuart Blackwell, a graduate assistant.

Only in its embryonic state four months ago. The program will be implemented at Wright State in time for the fall quarter of 1987.

"The purpose of the Multicultural Living Program, co-sponsored by the Housing Office and International Student Advising, is to offer Wright State students an educational, out-of-classroom opportunity to develop a better understanding of other cultures, as well as addressing the needs of new incoming international students," according to documents on the program.

Eight Forest Lane two-bedroom apartments will be set aside for the program. Each apartment will house two new international students and two returning domestic students. In addition to receiving assistance at the beginning of fall quarter to assure a smooth transition to Wright State, the students will participate in various programs and activities throughout the year designed to promote greater intercultural awareness.

Some of the activities include: serving cultural food items, celebrating international holidays and even designing an international decor in the apartments to bring a foreign environment to Wright State.

In addition, training classes will be offered to the participating students beginning in the spring of 1987 for the individual student and the fall of 1987 for the domestic and international students together.

The participants in the program must be continuing WSU students, and must have previous campus residential experience. In addition they are required to maintain a 2.5 overall grade point average.

Lyons and Blackwell are adamant about the MLP. They said it is imperative with today's interdependence of countries concerning business and education that we know more about other cultures. The blend of students in the program will experience inter-cultural learning as well as cultural awareness and consciousness-raising, they explained.

Students who do not have the time or the finances for world travel can experience foreign culture in their own backyard in the form of the Multicultural Living Program.

HERFF JONES
... a tradition of excellence

By JOE HERPY

Associate Writer

"It's hard to win when we are giving up two matches automatically before we play," said freshman Robert Lee of the Wright State men's tennis team.

Marvin Gross, head coach of the men's team, is currently searching for a sixth man to complete the men's team. The squad is running one man short due to transfers and lack of interest. The team sacrifices a singles match along with a doubles match because of the vacant spot.

"I think it would be an interesting season when we finally do obtain a sixth man," Lee said.

The team is led by Wade Rupper at the number-one slot. The senior tallied up a 9-13 record last season, finding most of his success at the number-four position where he posted a 7-6 mark. He also played the number-one doubles with Todd Armstrong, who is not on the team this year. Rupper and Armstrong combined for a 6-5 mark.

John Robinson seems to have a stronghold on the number-two singles. He compiled a 9-11 season last year while tallying a 7-5 mark at the number-three spot.

Robinson saw most of his doubles action at the number-two position with John Corbean, who is transferring to Ohio State.

Corbean played number-two last year, and his talents will be missed. The two linked up to post a 6-6 1986 mark.

Robinson combined with Ruppert, a likely doubles pair this year, last year at the number-two doubles spot for a 1-2 record.

The rest of the five-man Raider court team is comprised of three freshmen.

Lee went 14-2 for Bishop Flaget High School in Chillicothe. He lost in the semi-finals at sectionals.

Joe Krutza graduated from Beavercreek High School but did not play in his senior year. He had differences with the coach there.

Mark Blair is the last freshman on the team.

The men have played two matches at home with Transylvania and the University of Dayton over spring break.

Transylvania racked up a 7-2 score on the young Raider squad. Lee defeated Dave Richard in three sets, 6-4, 3-6 and 6-4.

The other win came on the shoulders of Lee teamed up with Blair at the number two doubles. Tim Newton and Todd McCullough were the victims in three sets, 2-6, 7-6 and 7-5. On Tuesday, the Raiders went indoors at U.D. The Flyers showed no mercy, skunking the Raiders 9-0.

The early season tally is 0-2. "With the sixth man we will be there in future matches," Krutza said.

Base Lines:

All home matches for both men's and women's tennis are played at Thomas Cloud Park in Huber Heights.

with the recent dumping of inclement weather that Miami Valley has received, the tennis schedule has been affected. Check The Daily Guardian next week for further results as the weather permits.
